Abandon Hope of Election.

The government here has practically abandoned all hope of seeing an election or treating any further with Huerta as an individual. There is a disposition in administration circles to await the course of events, with the hope that the factional lines will be so tightly drawn as to bring about a natural adjustment without outside interference.

"I do not see how there can be a constitutional election in Mexico in view of the action of Gen. Huerta in arresting members of congress and dissolving that body," said Senator Bacon of Georgia, at the White House today.

"I do not see how, under the circumstances, it would be possible to hold a free and untrameled expression of the public will and desire when no man would dare make issue with Gen. Huerta. The Hunt of Arizona and Gen. Carranza, inelection will simply be a farce that will surgent governor of the Mexican state Senator Bacon, who is chairman of the Senate committee on foreign re-lations, had an appointment with and through an interpreter exchanged President Wilson and discussed the Mexican situation. The Georgia sena-tor wanted it distinctly understood that he was speaking for himself and not for President Wilson, but it is in-teresting that the views of the two men appear to coincide, inasmuch as men appear to coincide, inasmuch as the President earlier in the day, cautiously expressed himself as wondering how there would be a constitutional

Mass, who is a brother-in law of Huerta, none of the federal lead ers is absolutely loyal. From now on they believe, the constitutionalists will take a more aggresive stand, because o the capture by them of large quantities of artillery at Torreon. Capt. Alberto Salinas Carranza, nephew and member of the staff of Gen Carranza, the constitutionalist command er-in- chief, arrived in Washington yes-terday bearing messages to Periz Romero. the constitutionalist representative here. Cabinet Meetings Not to Be Discontinued-Fay Selected for San Francisco Post Office.

President Wilson quietly but firmly declared to his friends today that he could not give his assent to the adjournment of Congress without action upon the currency bill. There was no suggestion of threat in what he had to say, but he strongly maintained that the country demands immediate currency rearm to meet the commercial expansion expected from the operation of the new tariff bill, and that any other course will tend to cripple the success of the tariff of office by the coup d'etat. The President stated, in response to in-"The governors, civil and military, of all quiries, that he had not heard of any to outline his views more fully. ## terest the general public Could Call Another Session.

It was not forgotten today by con gressional callers that should Congress adjourn without disposing of the currency bill it will be within the power of the President to at once call that body back into session, and those who know the temper of mind and determination of the President have a strong idea that this is just what he would do. "The overwhelming majority of democrats in the Senate want action on the currency bill," said Senator James, "and so far as I know there is nothing to the talk of adjournment. Nobody has approached me about adjourning. Senator Bacon and the other senatorial callers said the same thing. The visitors returned to the Capitol impressed with the necessity of doing all in emergencies over the sea, for although their power to bring about an early report of the Senate committee on banking and currency and prompt consideration of the report. At the same time there was noticeable a helplessness as to suggestions about successfully working out the tie-up that now confronts everybody. just a case of drift. "Jim" Mann, republican leader of the House, called at the executive offices to present a friend. "Everybody wants to

Oil Poured on Waves. "I will be up with the milk in the morning." was the cheerful reply radiographed by Commander Harwood of the Anglo-American oil steamer Narragan sett to the Carmania's call for help. As soon as Capt. Barr of the Cunard steamer realized the situation he told the Marconi operator on board the Carmania to get in touch with the oil steamer, as an abundant supply of oil seemed to be the only means of subduing the violence of the seas and of facilitating the rescue operations. The Carmania quickly picked up the oil ship and received the hearty response quoted. True to his words the skipper of the Narragansett brought his steamer onto the scene early Friday morning and immediately sluiced hundreds of tons of oil on the waves.
